CENTENNIAL YEAR PHOTOS WIN INTERNATIONAL SHOW HONORS FOR PHOTOGRAPHER - FARMER AL HILTON

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 3 — Centennial year characters, or possibly characters of Porterville's Centennial year, are still on the move here and there around the world through the medium of Al Hilton's color photography.

During the 1962 year, Hilton had 104 color photos accepted by international shows in various countries of the world, and 75 per cent of the entries were character studies that he made during Porterville's 1961 Centennial year.

Prize of the lot was a photo of Brenda Burke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Burke, of Porterville, who Hilton first shot in her Centennial outfit. Later he had Mrs. Burke bring Brenda to his home for a series of photos, one of which became a real "show stopper."

"I had four prints of this picture on the circuit," Hilton says. "It was accepted 95 per cent of the time and appeared in about 30 international shows during the year."

Hilton, an internationally-known color photographer, judge and lecturer, is a citrus just east of town, and is currently the president of the Pioneer Water company.

During the past year his photos in international competition have won 19 honor ribbons, a bronze medal, a silver medal, two first-place trophies, a certificate of merit, and a bit of Communist propaganda, the latter included with slides returned from a show in Czechoslovakia.

All characters of the Porterville Centennial year had a standing offer to appear for free photos at the Hilton home. Hundreds of slides were made, in fact Hilton put together quite a colorful Centennial slide show.

And now those late lamented Dolls and Bushfaces are still on the move—thanks to Hilton's color photography.

COTTON ACREAGE AVAILABLE AT SEWER FARM

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 3.—A 19-acre piece of farm land, carrying a 10.8 acre cotton allotment, is available for rent, lease, or share cropping on city of Porterville sewer plant property.

City Manager Bob Rogers states that any farmer interested in obtaining use of the land should contact him at the Porterville city hall. A deal on a basis of the best offer will be completed during January, Rogers states.

BY BILL RODGERS

PORTERVILLE GETS another shot of publicity in the February, 1963, issue of "True West," now on the newstands, with a story titled, "The Return of Jim McKinney," written by Raymond W. Thorp and William B. Secrest, and including a 1902 photo of Main street, looking north from Oak. In case you don't know, Jim McKinney was Porterville's badman who made his final local play in 1902 when he shot up Scotty's Chophouse and the Zalud saloon, then killed his best friend, Billy Lynn, by mistake. McKinney was later killed in a famous gunfight in Bakersfield . . . The story of Jim McKinney was written about three years ago by Joe Doctor, Exeter newspaper man, under the book title of "Shotguns on Sunday," after months of historical

SUCCESS STORAGE OK; WATER NEEDED

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 3 — Representatives of interest in the Tule River Water association, the bureau of reclamation and the army engineers reached agreement early this week on a 1963 schedule for water storage and release back of Success dam — and now all that is needed is water.

The contract was essentially the same as that under which Tule river interests operated in 1962, the first year of storage in Success reservoir. If there is water in the river, storage can start on February 1.

Included in the Tule River Water association is the Lower Tule Irrigation district, the Porterville Irrigation district, the Pioneer Water company, the Vandalia Irrigation district that is closely tied with the Campbell-Moreland Ditch company, and Tulare Lake basin interests.

As yet there has been little rain in the mountains and no snow in the Tule River watershed, making this a most "unusual" year. The eventual size of Lake Success during spring months, and the amount of water that will be available for release during the spring and summer depends entirely on rain and snowfall in the Sierra during the next three months.

L. A Angel Ball Players Here Saturday

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 3 — The weather may be cold, but there will be baseball and spring in the air Saturday night when the Los Angeles Angels, of the American league, come to Porterville for a Warmup Banquet.

With tickets selling for $5 for adults and $2 for juniors, funds raised will be used to operate the Connie Mack League in Porter-

Our Boy Harp Is Right Most Of The Time

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 3 — Davis Harp, sports columnist for The Farm Tribune, former Porterville college tackle, and now a school teacher, was right most of the time in his pick of bowl winners.

He had USC over Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl by one TD — he missed by a point; he had LSU over Texas; Alabama over Oklahoma; and Green Bay over New York in the pro-title game.

But contrary to Harp's predictions, Ol' Miss beat Arkansas; and the "no contest" match in which Penn State was supposed to tromp Florida in the Gator bowl ended with a Florida win.

As for our "fearless prognosticators" of the Rose Bowl, John Moore came the closest — he predicted Willie Brown by a nose.

Bill Reece Leaves Tribune

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 3 — Bill Reece, writer, artist and advertising man, left The Farm Tribune as of the first of the year to become associated with Valley Irrigation and Construction company in Porterville.

CITRUS DAMAGE IS QUESTIONABLE

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 3 — Cold weather damage to citrus in the southeastern Tulare county area is still questionable, since fruit that was hit by the 20-degree, and lower, weather of last week is just now beginning to break down.

It will probably be the end of the week before a real picture begins to develop, however, there is unquestionably damage to the Navel crop in the lower areas and in the unprotected areas.

But it would appear that there is also considerable undamaged fruit, and loss to growers in many instances may be primarily a loss in grade rather than a loss of crop.

Status of the Valencia orange crop will not be determined for some time; since a Valencia orange will often grow out of frost damage by picking time in the spring.

There is tree damage in the district, particularly in the lower

MANY TREES - in fact too many - look like this in the southeastern Tulare county citrus belt as a result of the end-of-December cold wave that sent temperatures to 20 degrees and lower. Young citrus groves have been hit in many areas, also new growth on older trees, but it appears now that there is little permanent tree damage, and young groves will grow out all right. AMONG THOSE present when the Los Angeles Angels stage a Warmup Banquet Saturday night in the Porterville high school cafeteria will be, from top, left: George Bryson, executive assistant, who will MC the banquet; Bob Reynolds, Angels president and former great Stanford athlete; Lee Thomas, slugging first baseman for the Angels; Outfielder Ken Hunt; Bob Lemon, pitching coach and former great Cleveland Indian hurler; and George Goodale, promotions director for the Angels. Leon Wagner, Rocky Bridges and Tom Morgan will also attend the banquet, which will raise funds for operation of the Porterville Connie Mack league. (L.A. Angels photos)

ROOM FOR ARGUMENT AND AGREEMENT

Three political subdivisions have been involved for several years in community recreation—The city of Porterville, the Porterville Elementary School district, and the Porterville Union High School and College district.

Each of these is administered by a group of elected officials and each has specific responsibilities; most certainly there are honest differences of opinion as to where these responsibilities begin and end concerning recreation.

Right here, perhaps, one distinction should be understood. When one political subdivision uses the facilities of another political subdivision to conduct a program that is the responsibility of the user, then there may well be some kind of compensation involved.

When individual citizens, or groups of citizens use the facilities of a political subdivision, then there may well be admission charges, or rental fees, or free use, depending on how the elected officials see the situation. But the point is that there is a different approach, necessarily, when for instance, the schools use a city facility, such as the ball park or swimming pool, in an official school program, and when individual students, or groups of students, use the same facility as individuals but not as part of the school program.

The same difference applies when the city uses a school facility in its recreation program, and when individual citizens use a school facility as individuals.

Carrying the individual approach a step further, city of Porterville residents pay the same school tax as do people outside the city, but people outside the city do not pay the same city taxes as people inside the city pay to support city facilities.

So it can be argued that city folks are entitled to the same use of school facilities as are country folks, but country folks are not entitled to the same use of city facilities as are city people.

But even here the situation is not cut and dried, for people outside the city do contribute financially to the city in the form of sales tax, and it may well be economically profitable to the city to encourage outsiders to come into the city to use such facilities as the golf course, the swimming pool and the ball park —even the city library, which does have an element of recreational use.

So while the line is not absolute, it still can be logically argued that city people and country people have equal use of school facilities, but country people, from the standpoint of "who pays the bill" may not be entitled to equal use of city facilities.

And we admit that the shades of black and white in this area of argument are colored by an individual's point of view.

Now, the big question. Whose responsibility is recreation?

School trustees can logically say that their responsibility is limited to the education function, that recreation after school hours and during the summer is someone else's worry. Or they can say that the school does have a responsibility toward providing recreation after school and during the summer; again we involve the personal attitude of the elected officials.

City administrators can also say that recreation is none of their business, or they can say that it is their business; this is a matter of personal opinion.

In the case of both city and school officials, the attitude of that segment of the public that elects them is a strong factor, since it is the public that, in one way and another, pays the bill.

Traditionally, the city of Porterville has accepted little or no responsibility for a recreation program during the school year; both the high school and elementary district do conduct certain activities during the school year that can be classed as recreation —mostly for students, but, as in the case of city league basketball in the high school gym, also for adults.

The city of Porterville, on the other hand, has accepted major responsibility for conducting a summer recreation program, principally baseball, although summer bands use school facilities, and school athletic fields are also utilized.

And to this we must add the efforts of many individuals who manage teams, and who put up money for uniforms and other equipment.

All this adds up to the fact that for a number of years the city has spent considerable money, and has allowed use of city facilities, in summer recreation that includes boys and girls from an area much wider than the city limits. A far less amount of money, plus facilities, have been contributed by the school districts.

We feel there has been quite general public acceptance of this arrangement, even though the questions of basic responsibility, who benefits most, and who pays what have never been spelled out in detail.

With all of these shades of attitudes and approaches in mind, city councilmen and high school trustees will meet January 14 to attempt to further reevaluate this community's recreation program, and also use of city facilities in the school program.

There is most certainly room for argument, but there is also a lot of room for agreement.

It is in the area of agreement that answers must be found, and can be found, even though the points of view of the elected officials of the three political subdivisions must of necessity be somewhat different.

National Scene

Washington, Jan. 2—The importance of providing the President of the United States with the best possible advice takes on fresh significance as a new session of Congress prepares to grapple with far-flung domestic and international problems.

It is being pointed out on Capitol Hill that President Kennedy himself, in his recent review of his first two years in the White House, provided a startling example of the failure of his advisers.

Mr. Kennedy, referring to the disastrous Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, said flatly that "the advice of those who were brought in on the executive branch" was "unanimous" and "wrong" and "I was responsible."

Now, many members of Congress are fearful of the type of advice Mr. Kennedy is getting on economic problems from some of his leading associates. An economic "Bay of Pigs" is feared—with damage to the nation's economy—if their advice should be followed.

Principal interest in this regard is being directed at Mr. Kennedy's selection of two new members of his Council of Economic Advisers. The council is set up to guide the President on economic policies vitally affecting the nation's future.

One of the new members—Gardner Ackley, former professor at the University of Michigan—has in the past advocated establishing a federal Wage and Price Commission to determine standards, subpoena industry records, and issue findings with respect to all "strategic" price and wage increases proposed.

The other person selected by Mr. Kennedy—John P. Lewis, professor at Indiana University — has advocated requiring all big industrial concerns to obtain federal charters and to consult with government officials on prices and wages.

The third council member—Chairman Walter W. Heller—is regarded as the principal author of the Kennedy "Guidelines" for determining (in theory, at least) what are proper price and wage increases by industry.

So, it is obvious that the views of the council members would result in further regimentation of business—thereby preventing maximum growth of the sluggish economy.

Their ideas, as well as those of other presidential advisers, will be reflected—to some extent, at least—in the legislative program that Mr. Kennedy urges Congress enact in 1963.

Industry is urging upon Mr. Kennedy and upon Congress a legislative program intended to bring about expansion of the nation's economy. Among other things, industry's program proposes:

1. Elimination of all unessential government spending to protect the nation's fiscal solvency.

Indications are that Mr. Kennedy's budget for the 1963 fiscal year (starting next July 1) will recommend spending in excess, for the first time in history, of the record war-time total of $98.3 billion in 1945.

2. Enactment of the Herlong-Baker tax rate reform measure which, by a series of five annual reductions, would lower personal and corporation income tax rates to a maximum of 42 percent.

Mr. Kennedy plans to ask Congress to cut personal and corporation income tax rates —and to recoup part of the lost revenue by imposing additional penalties upon industry and individuals. Details are to be made public after Congress convenes on Jan. 9.

3. Approval of legislation to curb the monopoly power of labor unions, which has enabled them to force wages to uneconomic levels

PORTERVILLE LIBRARY LISTS IMPORTANT BOOKS

An excellent book on a very important subject is SURVIVAL OF THE FREE—the last strongholds of wild animal life, by Wolfgang Engelhardt. This is a graphic appeal on behalf of the many wild animals in danger of extinction in the world. With articles by naturalists and wild life experts, writing about the functions and problems of the national parks and game reserves of the world, there are more than 150 striking photographs, some in color, of the most interesting mammals, birds and reptiles in need of protection. Also contains a descriptive list of the world's national parks, and nine maps.

ELEGANT WITS AND GRAND HORIZONTALS, by everyone's favorite, Cornelia Otis Skinner, is a sparkling book about the blithe, frivolous world of Paris in the 1890's. Miss Skinner's research for this book began when she was doing the script for her solo musical show, "Paris '90". She was entranced by the manners, spirit and erotic seasoning of that time and place. Her portraits of Parisians, among them Jules and Edmond de Goncourt, Sarah Bernhardt, Marcel Proust, Jeanne Detourbey, Comtesse de Loynes, and Tristan Bernard, are skillfully woven into an account of the protocol of social life and the running of salons, and there are quantities of wonderful anecdotes. The "grand horizontals", incidentally, were the leading cocottes.

Here is a descriptive title — THE HATCHET MEN, by Richard Dillon: the colorful story of a vanished world, San Francisco's Chinatown in the days of the tong wars. It is a social history of the violent days of San Francisco's slaughterous struggle to control lucrative gambling, slave girls and opium dens which flourished from 1880 until the earthquake and fire destroyed Chinatown in 1906. It also outlines the history of the Chinese colony in America, particularly in San Francisco, where these early unalterable aliens, hated by the Irish and other groups, were virtually confined to a ghetto swept by tong wars as fierce as Mafia and Comorra vendettas. The fascinating factual material here equals many of the Fu Manchu novels.

KILL AND OVERKILL, by Ralph Lapp, is a brief, terse review of the facts about atomic weapons and strategy, the arms race, and nuclear questions and issues. The giant bombs have gone beyond instruments of warfare and are now psychological weapons to terrorize whole populations, says the author, who is a physicist-writer well known for other books in the field. He firmly believes in limitation of armaments.

PACKER-GIANT GAME HAS TO BE ONE OF HARDEST EVER PLAYED

The 1962 National Football League championship game played in New York Sunday between the Green Bay Packers and the NY Giants was one of the roughest contests we have ever witnessed, on or off of TV. That the Packers came away with a 16-7 victory was no fault of the bull-mean Giant defense.

It was apparent from the first that Jim Taylor, the Packers' line smashing fullback who was chosen as the NFL's most valuable player for the past season, was a marked man. On the first offensive play unleashed by Green Bay the Giant defense battered Taylor to the ground and when the whistle was tooted at least half of the Giant defense had gotten in their licks on the hard-driving fullback. Sam Huff, Giant middle linebacker, became Taylor's shadow and the two had words on many occasions before the afternoon was over. Once the Giant defense drove Taylor out of bounds and an elbow driven into his stomach sent the fullback to the sidelines. It was pretty obvious, even on the TV screen, that the Giants wanted Taylor on the bench, or on a stretcher.

But while the Giant defense concentrated on Taylor, Packer quarterback Bart Starr found his receivers, on Kramer, Boyd Dowler, and Max McGee often enough to put the Packers in position for three field goals. The only offensive touchdown of the game came on an eight yard run by Taylor after the Packers had recovered a Giant fumble deep in New York territory.

The New York offense was well contained by the Packer defenders. Just about the only threat that the Giants could muster was the passing of Y. A. Tittle to Del Shofner. Tittle was rushed badly by the big Packer front four. The Giants had one offensive threat killed in the first half when the Packers intercepted a Tittle pass on their own 15 yardline. The Giants final offensive threat carried to the Packer 23 yardline where the officials took over with two consecutive major penalties. They punted with a fourth down and 50 yards to go situation.

The Giant-Packer playoff game may not have been the best football game ever played, but it has to go down as one of the hardest ever played.

We seem to have made a major miscall in the Gator Bowl when we took Penn State over Florida and called it no contest. Florida not only beat Penn, but made them look very bad and rather inept. The 17-7 Florida win was no fluke.

Oh well, you can't win'em all.

CHAPEL CHIMES

By Rev. N. J. Thompson

As the bells ring in the new year people world-wide will court Dame Fortune by eating certain foods "guaranteed" to bring luck to them during the year ahead. Every country seems to have its favorite "eating for luck" superstition.

The Englishman as he has for centuries believes there is no luckier way to start the new year than by eating the traditional roast beef and plum pudding. The Scot's lucky dish is known as pitcaithly bannocks made of shortbread and decorated with sugar mottoes. The Hungarians and the Swedes favor roast pork for their New Year's dinner. Germans also favor pork. And the carrots on their plate represent good fortune in the form of gold coins, while white cabbage symbolizes silver coins.

Our Lord, in His Sermon on the Mount, admonished His audience not to worry unduly about what they ate and drank. He asked, "Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature?" Then He told them not to worry about their wardrobe. He said, in effect, "Take a look at the lovely lilies in the field. Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

A Nebraska farm magazine warns that a hidden hunger in the soil can cripple the corn yield. The field may have enough nitrogen and phosphorus, but have a serious zinc deficiency.

If your life fruitful? If not, perhaps you have a hidden hunger for God's kingdom and righteousness.

As the new year opens, it is nice to make resolutions. Our noblest resolutions, however, must recognize that man cannot live by bread alone. Our resolve to be better, and do better, must be prefaced with a hungering for Christ, the Bread of Life.

WINTER DEER RANGE IN POOR SHAPE BECAUSE OF LACK OF RAIN; MONACHE HERD IS STILL IN HIGHER COUNTRY

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 3 — Feed conditions on the winter range of the Monache deer herd are not good, it was reported last week by a group of sportsmen and fish and game officials who visited the range on a semi-annual inspection trip, however, because of lack of snow in the high Sierra country, only a few deer were found on the range.

Deer that were seen were in good shape, but the question is, what shape the herd will be in generally, by early spring, if weather forces the deer onto the range in usual winter numbers.

Area covered by the party was Long Valley, the South Fork of Kern river, Lamont meadow country, and the Chimney Creek district. There was virtually no crop of pinon nuts, no forage grasses, and only light new growth on bitterbrush.

In the survey party were: Ross Welch, retired game warden; Cooper Smith, from the Sequoia Forest office; Woody Hannam, pack string operator out of Quaking Aspen; George Franklin, state fish and game department; and R. J. Owen, Porterville farmer. All of these men are from Porterville.

With the group also were A. Warren Ahlstrom and Grant Birmingham, both from the U. S. department of the interior, fish and wildlife service. The group plans another survey trip into the area in late February or early March.

Traveling out of Porterville with vehicles and horse trailers, the party met in Nine-Mile canyon, then spent two days riding through the winter range country.

Welch is of the opinion that although 400,000 acres has been declared a wildlife area, with no cattle grazing allowed, bitterbrush, and other feed on the range is not gaining. The country is mostly high desert in character, and now badly needs rain.

It is also the opinion of Welch that the Monache herd now has too high a ratio of bucks to does. The herd moves during the spring, summer and fall, north into the high Sierra, along the Big Kern river, as far as Sequoia park.

REDESIGNED P. E. PROGRAM AT HIGH SCHOOL

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 3 — A completely redesigned boy's physical education program is being put into effect at Porterville high school which has as its prime goal the all-out effort of each student in pursuit of his physical development.

The program, under the direction of Forrest "Doc" Mock, chairman of the boy's physical education department, is geared to give all participants a well developed, well conditioned, highly coordinated body.

To recognize the physical achievements of the individual student a "color system" has been adopted. The uniform colors are red for beginners, blue for intermediates, and gold for advanced students. A white satin uniform will be worn by those who reach honor status. According to Mock, the student who gains the privilege to wear white satin will have to be an all-around athlete in every sense of the word.

Every student starts out in the beginner or red group, and advances according to his performance on these fitness tests:

Test	Blue	Gold	Wh.
Pull-ups	10	14	20
Push-ups	32	40	55
Bar dips	12	16	30
Sit-ups (2 min.)	50	60	70
Agility run (in sec.)	20	19	18
880 yard run	3:00	2:30	2:05
Man lift-carry yds.	660	880	mile
Rope climb (20 ft)	10s	8s	6s
Burpee (20 seconds)	12	14	16
Two arm hang(m)	2:00	2:30	3:30

After the first series of tests, to be given in January, the students will be regrouped according to need and ability. Specialized training will be given to those who need help in certain areas of physical development. Mock believes that in this type program each student may receive the individual attention that would be impossible in an ungrouped and untested physical education class.

FOLLOWING THE gold rush days in California, the state had the problem of great potential land developments but lacked people. As a result many types of promotions were used to interest Easterners in coming to California to settle. One of these promotions involved special excursion rates offered by railroads, supplemented by promotional material concerning specific areas. The above promotional piece, provided to us by Delbert Swisher, is typical of the old days, this piece carrying the date of 1901. And what a change since then. Now the problem is people, not lack of them, and it was promotions of this type that played an important part in starting the migration that now has made California the largest state, population-wise, in the nation.

TO YOUR HEALTH!

This is much more than a popular toast to your pharmacist. Like your physician, he is dedicated to a single major cause — to keep you well and healthy.

The "ounce of prevention" adage is all important in preventive medicine. Annual physical examinations and prompt diagnosis of illness enable your doctor to save you precious time and money.

More and more people recognize the wisdom of a regular medical checkup. It is the best way to put that "ounce of prevention" to practical use.

If a prescription is necessary, we are prepared to give you immediate service.

A RICHER LIFE!

The beginning of each New Year has always been acknowledged as the time to look in the mirror, appraise what we see and invariably resolve certain changes of attitudes or actions. Even when it comes to investing, we discover that attitudes are most important, if our goals are to be achieved.

Perhaps some of these ideas may help.

. . . Real happiness isn't costly—only the imitations.

. . . A writer once asked the ten richest women in America what would make them happier; everyone quickly replied, "To be needed."

. . . So live that, no matter what happens, it couldn't happen to a nicer person.

. . . Remember, the best time to dig for clams is at low tide.

. . . When something goes wrong, it's better to ask "Who's going to fix it? than "Who's to blame?"

. . . You can be sure then, when everybody thinks alike, nobody thinks very much.

. . . Want to feel rich? Live in a house smaller than you can afford.

. . . Before 40, it's wine, women and song; after 40, it's metrecal, same wife and "Sing Along wtih Mitch".

. . . Before borrowing from a friend, decide which you need more.

. . . Even if you're on the right track, if you just sit there, you might get run over.

Some of the above, for sure, will help you to a richer life. We have some other ideas, too. If it is a richer life you want, get in touch with . . .

We Only Heard

BY BILL RODGERS

research. We suspect that the writers of the True West article leaned heavily on Doctor's book, adding a bit of "color" here and there on the premise that a good story should lose nothing in the telling . . . If the McKinney story is an example, name of True West magazine should be just West, however the article on Porterville's outlaw makes good reading and there will no doubt be people around the country who will hear of Porterville for the first time through this article. And as they say, any publicity is good publicity . . . But if you are interested in the real McKinney story, you can find "Shotguns On Sunday" in the Porterville city library, or you can buy a copy of Doctor's book in local bookstores.

THERE SEEMS to be quite a buzzing about paying Democrat precinct workers to get out the vote in the November general election. And there has been considerable buzzing over a period of time about Democrats, in some counties, putting out roving registrars to corral voters, with the incentive of additional pay for the registrars. Certain Democrats down south blasted the paid precinct worker deal, but Big Daddy Unruh and Governor E. G. Brown said it was all right . . However, in spite of what Unruh and Brown think, it seems pretty silly, dangerously silly, that someone has to be paid to get people to register to vote, then someone has to be paid to take people to the polls. In fact it's no credit to the American system that any effort, paid or unpaid, should be necessary to push free people into registering and into voting . . . But that's the way it is, and in America it's the votes that count, so those as want to be in public office, or want their party to be in public office, had better get with the practical approach to vote getting . . . Not the extolling of sound government principles, the technique of vote getting.

SPEAKING OF Governor E. G. Brown, we were terribly, terribly thrilled to receive a Christmas card from him, a real cute card with a color picture of the entire family and with a side-splitting reference to Grandpa and Grandma Brown. On the front of the card was an old print of the Governor's Mansion in Sacramento, that beautiful and historic building that Brown wants to replace with a million dollar new job .. . But it was so nice of the Governor to spread the spirit of Christmas with a card to us who he does not know and who, if he did know, would hardly class as a friend to whom to send Christmas cards . . . But after all, when the warm feeling of Christmas permeates a man's being, and he says to one of his political secretaries, "Don't forget that list of city councilmen in California," the spirit of Christmas throbs and swells, and to think that the governor would send us a card. We're just thrilled, thrilled, thrilled.

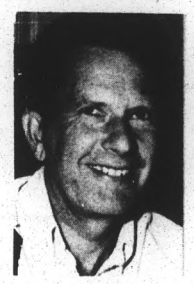
25 YEARS EXPERIENCE



From Daybell Nursery By John

Among the nice things about the nursery business is the change which takes place with each season or each new year. January is especially interesting because it brings the most new things. New roses, new shade trees, new fruit trees and several truck loads of other fresh greenery.

The new roses are Tropicana and Royal Highness. Tropicana will probably be the most popular because it is a fluorescent orange red which blooms from spring to fall. Royal Highness is pink and has all the outstanding qualities required of All America winners.

Two trees which we are carrying for the first time this year are the Chinese Pagoda tree and the smoke tree. The Chinese Pagoda is a large tree with colorful yellow flowers in bunches fifteen inches long. The smoke tree is a small one about fifteen feet tall and equally wide. It prefers little care and poor soil so should do well for most of us.

By the way, frozen plants and trees should not be trimmed back for at least a couple of months and then only if you're sure what's damaged and what isn't. If in doubt about such things just call or come by "E" Street North of Olive.
